

A watercolor illustration of a child sitting in a wooden rocking chair, reading a book. The child is positioned in front of a large window with sheer curtains, looking out at a green landscape. To the right, a wooden desk holds a lamp and books. The room has a cozy, lived-in feel with a rug on the floor and framed pictures on the wall to the left.

If you want your children to be intelligent,
read them fairy tales.
If you want them to be more intelligent, read them more fairy tales.
-Albert Einstein